

An aerial photograph of Vancouver, British Columbia, showing the city skyline, the harbor with many sailboats, and the surrounding mountains. The entire image is covered with a semi-transparent purple overlay. The text 'BC | Climate Resilience Summit 2025' is centered over the image. 'BC' and '2025' are in yellow, while the rest is in white.

BC | Climate Resilience Summit 2025

Vancouver, Robson Square March 3rd/4th

Low Carbon Resilience Retrofits

Tackling Building Decarbonization and Climate Resilience in Tandem

March 4, 2025

We help organizations achieve energy, climate, and asset renewal objectives by integrating engineering, energy management, and sustainability services.

By Tackling Climate Mitigation and Adaptation together we can maximize our opportunities to find

☒ win / ☒ win

Solutions

Solutions that...

Increase Resilience

Decrease Emissions

Maximize Co-Benefits

Address Equity Concerns

Interest holder engagement

- Critical element of climate resilience assessment
- Opportunity to
 - Connect with people & acknowledge that this work is not happening in isolation
 - Increase knowledge and capacity
 - Gain a better understanding of barriers & address them
 - Generate support for the long-term implementation of low carbon resilience actions

Climate Emotions Wheel

It is important to recognize that the topic of climate change and climate action work has a lot of associated emotions

For practitioners
&
For interest holder engagement participants

Climate Emotions Wheel © 2024

ClimateMentalHealth.Net

The Climate Mental Health Network

- One source of resources to help guide conversations about climate emotions

Images and Guide from: <https://www.climatementalhealth.net>

No matter what you do it will never amount to anything but a single drop in a limitless ocean. And yet, What is an ocean but a multitude of drops?

Author David Mitchell, Cloud Atlas

Photo by Tomas Sobek, https://www.flickr.com/photos/tomas_sobek/4649690892

Thank you.

Julianne Pickrell-Barr

Associate, Senior Climate Action Specialist

juliannepb@prismengineering.com

www.prismengineering.com

Prism Engineering Ltd.

Thank you to our Sponsors!

